FATAL INJURY

The whole community was shocked on hearing that Hugh McKenzie had passed away, on Monday evening. The unfortunate young man was working around the stable, on Sunday, when one of the horses kicked him in the groin. He was removed to the Consort Hospital on Monday but his injury proved to be fatal, his death occurring at nine o'clock that night.

Hugh McKenzie was in his 33rd year, having been born in Scotland in 1888. He was one of the early settlers in this district, farming two and a half miles south of town. Besides his mother, two brothers and three sisters are left to mourn his untimely death.

The funeral was held yesterday afternoon from the home of his sister, Mrs. J. R. Blair, and was very largely attended. Rev. Wickenden conducted the service interment taking place at the local cemetery.

The sympathy of the entire district is extended to the members of the family.

Local Happenings

Bill Perdue had a narrow escape, on Tuesday, when he was thrown out of a wagon. His team became frightened at the noise from the pump house, and bolted, overturning the wagon on the grade, the box falling on Bill. The team got tangled up in Connah's fence but were none the worse for their escapade. Perdue got a bad shaking up and managed to get home alright.

W. H. Olson is having the former bank premises, fixed up for residential purposes.

There is a crying need here in Monitor for more housing accommodation, and a dozen or fifteen houses could easily be let at the present time.

L. O. Gould and M. Barker motored to Calgary, this week, calling at Stettler and Red Deer enroute. J. Bergman and W. Whitell went as far as Red Deer with them.

The high wind, on Tuesday made it anything but pleasant for those who had to be outdoors. The air was thick with dust and sand, and it was hard to navigate against the wind.

There are some fair sized sand-drifts left in the wake of the storm. Tom Ulph lost a few chickens when his hen-house collapsed during the blow.

C. C. Connah came down from Edmonton, on Tuesday, and will spend a few days in the district.

There will be a big, old time, Halloween Dance in town on the 31st.

Dr. Agnew, Dentist, will be here for one week, Nov. 11th to 17th.

During the heavy gale on Tuesday sparks from a blacksmith's fire, at Sedalia, set the prairie ablaze and about 80 men were fighting it before it was extinguished.

Considerable loss resulted from the fire, and John Larson lost his barn and contents, while Fisher suffered by the destruction of his hay and oat stacks. Other farmers in the vicinity had their pastures destroyed.

The programs given at the three-day Chautauqua, during last week, were thoroughly enjoyed by the large audiences which taxed the capacity of the Big Hall. A number of people had to be turned away, on Thursday evening, owing to the large crowd present.

The extra fine, warm weather and bright moonlight nights helped greatly in bringing out such large crowds.

Over forty names have been secured for the 1922 contract.

Good Roads Throughout The West

Visitors from Europe to America, and the thousands of our Canadian boys who went overseas between 1914 and 1918, cannot refrain from noting the sharp contrast afforded by the character of the roads in European countries with those which so generally prevail on this side of the Atlantic, and the contrast is by no means favorable to America.

It is recognized, of course, that the older civilizations of Europe, with their teeming millions of people, and their comparative small areas as contrasted with the enormous extent and sparse population of Canada, do not present parallel cases, but, after making due allowance for these conditions, it must be admitted that it is time that the people of Canada seriously grappled with the problem, huge as it is, of providing better highways.

Poor roads, or none at all, are inseparable from pioneer countries. The untrod spaces must first be explored, trails broken, and very ordinary routes of travel provided. Only with the influx of population and permanent settlement can the work of first class road-making be carried on. But despite all the handicaps of an enormous extent of territory and a small population Canada has led the world in the construction of railways, and its pioneer railway, still young in years, is a marvel of efficiency, a source of national pride, and of admiration in other lands.

But Canada's roads? Taken as a whole they are execrable, a source of national humiliation and shame, unworthy of an intelligent, enterprising people. Whatever excuse there may have been in the past for the neglect of the primary arteries of transportation and communication, the excuse will no longer hold good. The urgent need of dealing with the problem in a big, intelligent and aggressive manner is now clear. It has been recognized in the United States where great strides in the work of improvement have been made in recent years. It is now time that Canada woke up, and especially the Western Provinces. Quebec and Ontario are tackling the problem, and the West must do likewise.

The introduction of the automobile and its now almost universal use has forced the importance and value of good roads upon the attention of all. Important as good roads have always been in the internal economy of the country, they have taken an added importance and value with the coming of the motor driven car. Poor roads were never cheap at any time, and the cost of building good roads and maintaining them is small in comparison to the cost of bad roads in these days of the automobile.

It is false economy, penny-wise and pound foolish, to refrain from the necessary expenditure for good roads and then, as individual citizens and taxpayers, pay out many times the amount in loss of valuable time, huge bills for repairs to expensive cars, and enormous waste in the use of gasoline and oil, all of which is the inevitable result of bad roads. And every farmer knows the loss he sustains when forced to haul a half-load of grain many miles to an elevator because of the state of the roads, as compared with the hauling of a full load in less time, and at less labor for his horses, over a good road.

Two main ills appear to be required. First, that the haphazard method of road building by municipalities, oft times with inexperienced men in charge, be replaced by systematic planning and work carried out by the Provincial Governments under the direction of qualified engineers and road-making experts. To some slight extent this better method is being followed, but there is still room for its extension. In fact, in all Provinces throughout the West the Provincial Governments should be responsible for the proper construction of all main highways, leaving only the minor local arterials leading into those highways to the care of the municipal councils.

Second, and of equal importance, is the question of the maintenance of the roads once they have been built. Hundreds of thousands of dollars spent in the construction of fairly good roads have been lost, owing to failure to provide proper maintenance and upkeep. There is hardly a district in Western Canada which does not provide such object lessons of almost criminal mismanagement and waste.

The present time, when there is considerable unemployment throughout the country, would seem to suggest itself as a most opportune occasion to embark on an active and well-considered programme of good roads construction throughout the West. True, road-building cannot be carried on during the severe winter months when the ground is frozen, but the programmes could now be made and orders placed for necessary materials, thus providing winter employment in the manufacture of such materials, and then with the completion of seeding next spring thousands of men could be put actively at work and kept steadily employed until harvest and threshing called them into the fields, instead of, as now, bringing tens of thousands of harvest hands into the country for a few weeks' work at high wages right on the eve of winter setting in, hundreds of whom find that their harvest wages are not sufficient to carry them over the winter and they, therefore, become a charge upon the cities and towns into which they drift when threshing is completed.

Speaks Highly of BABY'S OWN TABLETS

Once a mother has used Baby's Own Tablets for her little ones she is always pleased to speak highly of them to other mothers. She knows that good they have done for her children and that the same preparation should be of benefit to others. Concerning the Tablets, Mrs. Fred Murphy, Charlotte Town, P.E.I. writes: "I have used Baby's Own Tablets for the past eight months and Baby is not too weak for too highly of them for they have been of great assistance to me in my first experience of motherhood." Baby's Own Tablets are a mild but thorough laxative which are absolutely harmless and may be given even to the very young with perfect safety. ## Note and Comment

The annual free distribution of samples of seed grain will be conducted as usual at the Experimental Farm, Ottawa.

The following kinds of seed grain will be sent out this year: spring wheat (in about 5 lb samples); white oats (4 lb); barley (5 lb); field peas (5 lb); field beans (2 lb); flax (2 lb). Only one sample can be sent to each applicant.

Applications must be made on printed forms which may be obtained by writing to the Dominion Cerealist, Experimental Farm, Ottawa.

As the stock of seed is limited farmers are advised to apply early to avoid disappointment. Those who applied too late last season are particularly requested to send in their names at once so that application forms may be forwarded to them.

Three Scotchmen entered a church rather late and took a seat. All went well for a time and during the course of the announcements—the minister made a special appeal to the effect that amounts not less than one dollar be placed on the plate. One of the three Scotchmen fainted and the other two carried him out.

About five million trees per year are sent out free by the Dominion Government Forest Nursery Station at Indian Head, Sask., to farmers to plant shelter-belts about their farms and buildings. The farmers pay the express charges on the trees and agree to cultivate the ground before and after setting out the plantation.

As a general rule the prairie settler requires first a shelter-belt or wind-break around his buildings. The establishment of a plantation to produce fuel and fencing material is either of secondary consideration or is not given a moment's thought the popular idea being that it takes trees too long to grow, and that it is not much use doing work the benefits of which will be reaped by some one else. This, however, is a mistake, as has been clearly shown by actual plantations set out on the western experimental farms, at Indian Head, and by private individuals scattered throughout the West.

The first carrier telephone system in Canada has just been put into commercial use between Calgary and Edmonton. The installation was made for the purpose of improving the government telephone service between the two cities and to outlying points in both the north and the south.

Two new lines have been provided by this system, without the stringing of any wire, and the results in actual use are 50 per cent. better than with any copper wire line.

Conversations between the two cities is clearer than house to house calls in either city. It is also possible now to carry on several simultaneous conversations over the same line.

Perhaps it was custom and the draw of the stream that drew her feet down the path, across the bench to the edge of the stream, and gurgled gently in the still night. She stood on the gravel by the water's edge, packed firm by the wagon-wheels of twenty-five years, and watched her image as it swayed gently in the smooth, glistening water. There was no moon, but the stars shone brightly in their midnight brilliance, and the water lay white and glistening against the black vagueness of the bushy banks. She stooped and let it fondle her fingers. It was warm and smooth. But it was shallow at the ford. . . . Far up it was quite deep. . . . The stars blinked a strange challenge from the sky, as though to say, "Here is the tree of knowledge, if you dare to drink thereof."

At length she turned her back on the stream and retraced her steps up the path, her feet very light and bare and still, in the quiet night. A light shone dimly from her father's window. At intervals a deep, contented sighing came from the cows in the barnyard. She took the path past the house and down to the corral, where she paused, her ears arrested by the steady drone of mastication. A lumbering, drooping black earth, cast little circles of light, and threw a doocle cow in dreadful silhouette against the barn. And by that dim light Beulah discerned the bent form of her mother, miffing.

"Mother, this is too much!" the girl exclaimed.

Her mother started and looked up. "You're leaving us, Beulah?" she asked. There was no reproach in her voice, nor even surprise, but a kind of quiet sorrow. "I couldn't let the poor brutes suffer," she explained. "Yes, I'm leaving," said Beulah. "I can stand it no longer."

The mother sighed. "I've seen it coming for some time," she said, at length. "I suppose it can't be helped."

"You're so passive," returned the girl, with a touch of impatience. "You make me want to fight. Of course it can be helped. It can't be helped by always giving in."

"Your father has met one of his own mettle at last," said the mother, and the girl fancied she detected a note of pride, but whether of father or daughter, or both, she could only guess. "Well, it's all very sad. Your father is dead, and Beulah. I should send you back to your bed, but somehow I can't. I don't blame you, Beulah."

She had finished the last cow. Beulah walked with the pails of milk, and the two women went back to the house together. When Mary had

Headache

Recurring headaches usually come from an exhaustion of the nervous system, and they do not disappear until the vigor of the nerve cells is restored by such upbuilding treatment as Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

Temporary relief by use of powders is often obtained at an enormous expense to the nervous system and the general health.

Get the nerves right and the headaches will not return.

Mrs. W. J. Pearce, Nuns St., Cobourg, Ont., writes:

"My system became run-down and I suffered greatly with pain in my head. This was so severe that I would have to bind a cloth tightly about my head so that I could get my work done. A friend advised the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and after taking the first box I found quite an improvement in my condition. I continued using them until I had taken about seven boxes, and they strengthened and built up my system splendidly, completely relieving the pain in my head."

washed her hands she took her daughter's face between her palms and kissed her on the cheeks. Slowly Beulah's eyes rolled about her neck, and it took all the strength in her nature to prevent surrender.

"It's not you I'm going from," she managed to say. "You understand that, don't you? I'll write to you often, and we'll surely meet before long."

"But I've just got to. There's no other way out."

"Stay till morning, Beulah. Your father may be disposed to give and take a little then, and you'll do the same, won't you? . . . Oh, my girl, don't break up our home like this!"

"You can't break up what you haven't got. Aside from you, why should I call this place home? I work here, and get my board and clothes. Well, I can work other places, and get my board and clothes. If I've got to go, I can go to a money-making machine, I will at least choose the machine."

"What plans have you made? Where are you going?"

"Haven't made any plans, and don't know where I'm going. But I'm going. At present that's enough. The plans will come along as they're made."

"Have you any money?" asked the mother, with a brisk effort at cheerfulness. She was already planning for her daughter in the new world she was about to enter.

"Enough to start me. That's all I need. I can earn more. It's not work I'm afraid of, although I suppose father would be able to see it that way. I'll put all the rest down to lack of desire and obstinacy. It's nothing. It's just a plain human craving to live."

"I sometimes wonder whether I'll be able to stand it through to the end," her mother whispered, somewhat fearfully, as though frightened by the admission. "I've seen it coming with you, and I can't help feeling that perhaps this is only the beginning."

"Oh, mother, if you should cry the other day, 'The world's a hole,' it would open his eyes. He'd see that there is something in the world besides wheat and cows, after all. You know, I think he's in a kind of trance. He's mesmerized by wheat."

It was so necessary in those first years of the war to be fighting starvation that it had become a kind of mania. Nothing short of some great shock will bring him out of it. If you would come—if you would only come too, things would be different."

"I couldn't do that," said the mother, after a silence, and as though speaking with herself. "He's my husband, Beulah. You don't understand."

They talked then, in secret, sorrowful confidence, of many things: dreams for the future only, and the war was returning to the earth. She saw the girl again leave the house, the time swung resolutely down the road that led to Plainville. Her heart was now at rest, even at peace. In the sacred communion of that last hour she had come to see something of her mother's nature, her sacrifice, and although she was going out into the world alone, she felt that somewhere, some time, was a solution that would reunite the broken family and tune their varying chords in harmony. The North star shone very brightly amid the myriad finer points of light that were scattered over the dark, cold face to the cold rays. The stars also always a strange fascination for her. Their immeasurable distance, their infinite number, their ordered procession—all spelled to her a Purpose—a Purpose that was bigger than wheat and corn and money. A Purpose that was like the stars, while she gazed vaguely but bravely in the darkness.

From an unhappy sleep in his room upstairs John Harris was awakened by the whine of the cream separator. A quiet smile stole across his strong, stolid, amiable face. "Beulah has noticed his daughter's absence."

"Where's Beulah?" he demanded. "I don't know," his wife replied. "Ain't she up yet?"

"I don't know." Harris arose from the table and went to the window. He noticed his daughter's room without knocking, for he had not been slept in, and a strange apprehension suddenly tightened about his chest. He returned quickly to the kitchen.

"Mary," he said, "I want to know where Beulah is."

Tanlac Accomplishes Remarkable Results In Geo. H. Nickels Case

Prominent Wisconsin Man Says Tanlac Promptly Relieved Him of Bad Case of Stomach Trouble of Six Months' Standing—Gains 27 Pounds and Feels Fine As a Fiddle.

GEORGE H. NICKELS.

It is an unquestionable fact that Tanlac is now being more widely endorsed by well known men and women than any other medicine in the medical profession. One of the latest to testify is George H. Nickels, well known lecturer, residing at 227 Wells St., Milwaukee, Wisconsin.

"Tanlac has not only completely restored my health, but I have actually gained 27 pounds in weight," said Mr. Nickels. In referring to the remarkable benefits he had derived from the medicine.

"For something over six months, my stomach was very badly disordered. I suffered terribly from Indigestion, and was sick almost constantly. I would be in great distress and I would invariably experience an uncomfortable bloating feeling for hours after eating. I had no appetite scarcely, and the little I ate would often make me deeply sick. My bowels ached until I felt like it would burst and I was nervous I trembled like a leaf. When I got up in the mornings, I was so weak and dizzy, I couldn't trust myself to walk around and I just sat all over."

"Tanlac has relieved all of these woes. It has done away with all of the discomfort in my condition for I am now enjoying the very best of health. My appetite is splendid. I relish my meals. Everything agrees with me perfectly. The nervousness, headaches and dizzy spells are and not a word of admission of the real facts from him? What more do you want than that? And on top of all, it will help him to live longer. I sincerely hope that you will be spared from such ails as long as you can. I daresay you know their plans from the first. You thought I wouldn't be interested in that, either."

THE FLANDERS' POPPY

Canada's National Memorial Flower

As each successive anniversary of Armistice Day has passed, the sentiment has been expressed among the people of the Allied Nations that there should be some tangible evidence of the reverence in their hearts for the heroic dead who made peace possible.

The children of the devastated areas of France gave the nucleus of an idea which is rapidly gaining recognition, when they gathered the red poppies which grow in profusion in Flanders and northern France and decorated the graves of the fallen heroes near their homes.

The French Children's League placed the women and children of the war areas at work making silk replicas of the poppy, with the idea in mind, that the proceeds of their sale could be devoted to the pressing need of providing for the thousands of orphan children in their land.

Sentiment in Canada in this desire to honor the fallen is even stronger. The Great War Veterans' Association of Canada saw in the poppy idea the means of achieving two worthy objects:

(1) The inauguration of the custom of wearing a poppy as a memorial flower on Armistice Day, and thus cherish in perpetuity the memory of the Sacred Dead.

(2) Extending much needed assistance to the orphaned children of France by purchasing, at a reasonable price, the product of their handicraft.

Monitor Branch, G. W. V. A., will have for sale, on Nov. 11th, an unlimited supply of these poppies which will be sold in the Big Hall by the W. A. of St. Laurence Church during their sale of work and supper, and it is hoped that every patriotic citizen in Monitor and district will honor the memory of our fallen heroes by wearing a "Flanders' Poppy" at the big G. W. V. A. Dance which will follow.

The dance is absolutely free and a hearty invitation is extended to everyone.
